

When this narcotics officer arrived in the program, he had been diagnosed with a benign fibrolipoma about 10 years prior. This under the skin “cyst” like growth had been unchanging. A few days into the program, the mass started to turn red and swell. Within a few more days it opened up and drained a clear fluid. Ultimately, the entire fibrolipoma disappeared completely to leave just a surface scar.

